The profitable culture of the soil depends on its thoroughness. A crop of clover plowed under enlivens up and freshens the soil.

General Farming.

Good stock looks better, does better and pays better than scrubs. A little neglect of the stock will soon destroy their best qualities.

Many good farmers consider it best not to pasture the cultivated fields. The old style of rail fence is a great drawback in keeping the farm clean. Early, thorough cultivation is one of the essentials necessary in growing a good crop. Other things being equal, the best seeds bring the best crop, both in quality and quantity.

and the richest soil and the best cultivated will yield the largest crops. THE opening paper in the August Eclectic is a strikingly interesting study, Greek life, by Walter Pater, dealing with Lacedaemon, the most unique commonwealth of Helias. The discussion of the cardinal problem of British politics by St. Loe Strachey, deals specially with that side of it suggested by the title, "Ulster and Home Rule." "Ancient Rome and Modern London," by Edward J. Gibbs, is the theme of a very interesting comparsion. In the paper by a London Elitor, on "Authors, In-CENTS dividual and Corporate," our readers will find an interesting study of a very interesting class. Mrs. M. E. Sandford interesting class. Mrs. M. E. Sandford tells us about "French Girls' Schools," and Dr. Farquharson sets forth "The Case for Moderate Drinking," with the dexterity of a barrister and the resources of a scientist. Sir Herbert Maxwell is the author of a striking paper on "Speech," which will be read by thoughtful people with keen attention for the charm of its style as well as for the well reasoned substance of its opinions. Arminius Vambery, one of the leading authorities of the age, analyzes the political situation in Central Asia with acumen, a paper well supported by that entitled "The Fate of the East" by An Old Resident. There are two admirable articles in popular science, the "New Star in Auriga" by William Huggins, and "The Secret of the Heavens," by J. Ellard Gore. Edward Delille writes caustically but entertainingly of "The American Newspaper Press," and there

Well, that's just like him-talking against nothing. There is no such a thing in existence as a force bill and there has been no such thing in existence since Mr. Cleveland has been before the public. The force bill exists only in the imagination of a lot of demagogues and ignoramuses. Mr. Cleveland is both a demagogue and ignor-amus. The New York Sun says he is
